BDI Home Visit Policy

Clients

- When a volunteer visits you for the first time, please inform them if you have any medical issues that they need to be aware of. i.e. after 45min – 1 hr your pain level increases and you need to rest. Hence the volunteer may then offer to take the equipment to the workshop or make another arrangement.
- You must try to fit in with their timing. Some of our volunteers work and cannot visit “on demand”.
- When the volunteer visits, it is a good time to mention any computer issues or difficulties you might be having. It is also a good idea to send an occasional email to your volunteer so they can be aware your computer and internet is functioning correctly.
- We have no staff or office. So those now paying by bank direct debit is really appreciated.
- Volunteers can only work on BDI owned equipment. It is a breach of their volunteer agreement to work on non-BDI owned equipment.
- It is ok to offer your volunteer a cup of coffee or tea.

Volunteers

- One of the critical tenets of Beyond Disability is to respect the sanctity of our client's homes. Visiting a disabled client in their own home requires you to focus on the computer task and to keep the person informed about what you are doing.
- You must respect the clients' privacy. Unless you have their consent you must not open their documents, photos or other personal information.
- Under no circumstances must you do anything which may make the client feel vulnerable in their own home. Only go where the computer is, unless invited to other areas – say for a cup of tea.
- If you are unsure of BDI procedure, please contact us via secretary@bdi.org.au.
